NO EXCEPTION TO THE RULE

Large Appropriations Made by
This Session of Congress.

WILL BE HEAVIEST ON RECORD

Probably Will Exceed the Billion Dollars Appropriated by the First Session of the Present Congress. Scarcely Any of the General Policies of the Country Have Been Touched Upon—Many Investigations Started.

Washington, March 1.—Now that billion dollar sessions of congress are the rule, little other than appropriation legislation can be enacted during the short session, and the one to end this week is no exception to the rule. The appropriations for the session probably will be the largest on record, even exceeding the $1,008,000,000 provided for at the first session. As only one of the fifteen general appropriation bills of this session has been sent to the president for his signature, an accurate statement of the amount to be appropriated is impossible.

Scarcely any of the general policies of the country were touched upon this session. The discussion in both houses of the secret service and of the Panama canal, and in the senate of the Brownsville affair and of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company purchase has brought the administration of Theodore Roosevelt prominently in view. The veto of the census bill, because the employees for the taking of the decennial census were not to be placed under civil service regulations, was a feature in another interesting chapter of the session. The census bill goes over to the special session of the Sixty-first congress. The veto of several dam bills because they did not recognize the principles advanced for the conservation of water powers attracted much attention.

Relief for Earthquake Sufferers.

The appropriation of $8,000,000 for the relief of the Italian earthquake sufferers at the beginning of the session has been spoken of as the most significant enactment of the session. A companion piece of legislation was enacted in the first session, when the remission of the remainder of the Chinese indemnity was authorized.

The passage of a law for the suppression of the opium habit in this country, it is hoped by its advocates, will exercise a wide moral influence. Appeals from many sections of the country were successful in obtaining a law for the preservation of the Calaveras big trees in California. An act of great importance to Western homeseekers authorized enlarged homestead entries in the arid region.

In the closing hours of the session the fate of many highly important measures is to be determined. It practically is assured that the monumental work of revising and codifying the penal code laws of the United States will be completed. It remains only for the two houses to approve the agreement already reached by the conference of the two bodies. As a result of this legislation the United States government will through a "rider" enter the field of regulation of the interstate shipment of intoxicating liquors. An amendment to the code prohibits interstate "C. O. D." shipments of intoxicating liquors.

Several of the so-called "Ku Klux" laws are stricken from the statutes by the general revision of penal laws.

Statehood Bill Cannot Pass.

The statehood bill, admitting Arizona and New Mexico into the Union, which has attracted much attention throughout both sessions, is still in committee in the senate. It is conceded that it cannot pass at this session.

The fate of the Gallinger ocean mail subsidy bill rests with the house. It has been reported out of committee, but its passage through the house is problematical. It provides for subsidizing mail lines to South America, Japan, Asia, the Philippines and Australasia.

Many measures of importance considered are regarded as certain to fail of enactment. Among these are the Burke wireless telegraph bill, the Weeks forest reserve bill, the Currier copyright bill, the $500,000,000 bond issue for improvement of waterways, changes in the government of the Isthmian canal zone, federal inspection of naval stores and grains and suppression of gambling in cotton futures.

The raw material in the shape of bills and resolutions presented to congress to work on in both sessions was stupendous. Bills numbering about 38,000 were introduced in the two houses. In addition 1,500 resolutions were presented.

Out of the mass of public bills, about 275 will become laws. There will be about 175 private bills enacted. The latter, however, are estimated to represent about 5,000 private bills introduced, as many of the private bills finally passed were omnibus bills, containing a consolidation of hundreds of individual measures. In other words, about 1 1/2 per cent of the bills introduced became laws. About fifty resolutions were finally agreed to.

Early in the Sixty-first congress the president outlined what have been termed his policies. They were in the main:

A national child labor law; an employer's liability law; anti-injunction legislation; amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law for good corporations and for labor unions; financial legislation; postal savings banks; revision of the tariff; waterways commission; regulation of water rights on navigable streams.

When the congress ends there will be no national child labor law, no postal savings bank, and no additional regulation of water rights. However, a child labor law was enacted for the District of Columbia, and it is hoped by the supporters of the movement that it will have a national influence. An employer's liability law has replaced the one declared unconstitutional. A commercial currency law was enacted and a monetary commission is investigating the subject of further financial legislation. Active steps looking to a revision of tariff have been taken.

The congress has also been distinguished by the number of investigations inaugurated. Among the more prominent ones were the investigations of the Brownsville affair, the secret service, submarine legislation and the paper industry. The waterways, immigration, monetary, Brownsville and postal commissions were created.

NEGRO MAKES A CONFESSION

Admits He Killed Clara Rosen
at Ottumwa, Ia.

PUT IN JAIL AT DES MOINES

John Junken Taken From County Prison at Albia for Fear of Mob Violence—Feeling Runs High in Ottumwa on Account of Five Brutal Murders of Women Having Occurred There—Immediate Trial for Slayer.

Des Moines, Ia., March 1.—John Junken, a negro, confessed slayer of Clara Rosen at Ottumwa, Feb. 5, last, was brought to Des Moines by Sheriff Griffin of Albia from the county jail there. The slayer was placed in the county jail here for safe keeping as feeling runs high in Ottumwa, the scene of five brutal murders of women.

Junken is alleged to have planned the murder at Ottumwa while he was still an inmate of the Fort Madison penitentiary serving time for robbing and beating a woman. It was his boast that he would again "do the trick" if given a chance. He boasted his ability to attack defenseless women. This information came in a letter from Albert Evans, a Missouri negro who was a cellmate with Junken at Fort Madison.

"Junken is guilty of that crime," writes the negro Evans. "He planned it while still in the penitentiary and when he left I knew that it was his intention to pull off the stunt as soon as he had an opportunity."

Evans' statement is given more weight on account of the fact that Junken killed Miss Rosen just a few days after he had been liberated from Fort Madison prison. He was released Jan. 19, and Feb. 5 the crime was committed.

Junken plans to stand trial and has made a request that a well known negro lawyer be sent to him for consultation.

"I was full of dope, I tell you, chuck full of it," he moaned as he tossed about on his narrow bunk.

Claimed He Used Drug.

He told the sheriff he had been chewing cocaine, but on the way to Des Moines he said he had been eating opium. Any attempt that he may make along this line to secure a lighter sentence and escape penalty will be fought by the state on the claim that the crime was premeditated.

The arrival of the mob from Ottumwa at Albia is responsible for Junken's confession. He began Friday to make his admission and at that time implicated Weaver, another Ottumwa negro. But prior to this he had confessed his guilt to another negro at the Albia jail.

Junken will be given an immediate trial.

The grand jury meets in Ottumwa Wednesday. The case will be submitted first and immediately upon the return of the indictment the trial will be called before Judge Roberts. Junken will be kept in the jail here until that time. He is twenty-seven years of age and has served numerous terms in prison.

Junken told the sheriff at Albia that he had trailed Miss Rosen to the home of her sister the night of the murder, where he watched her till she emerged an hour later, and then sneaked up behind her and struck her a fearful blow with his fist, knocking her to the sidewalk.

He then crushed her skull with a stone which he picked up. The first blow had knocked her unconscious. The negro declares he then robbed the girl of her purse and diamonds.

Junken was not taken to Fort Madison, as was first stated by the police, for the purpose of preventing a possible lynching. Junken told of where the stolen jewelry could be found, and a search in the home of Frank Weaver at Ottumwa revealed Clara Rosen's purse and gold-backed mirror and other stolen trinkets in the attic, reached through a trap door in the ceiling. Junken declares Weaver was not a party to the attack.

THROAT CUT FROM EAR TO EAR

Chicago Man Wandered About City in Semi-Conscious Condition.

Chicago, March 1.—With his throat cut from ear to ear and the arteries in both wrists lacerated with a dull razor, Joseph O'Connor has wandered about this city and small towns near it in a semi-conscious condition. He was picked up by the police and sent to the county hospital and the physicians say he may live. Medical men who saw him say his case is most remarkable. Last Thursday O'Connor attempted to commit suicide, but failed to kill himself and then apparently lost his nerve.

STILL FIGHTING FOR HIS FREEDOM

Lawyer Patrick Appears Before
Court in New York.

New York, March 1.—Before the appellate division of the supreme court today appeared Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer convicted of the murder by poison of Millionaire William Marsh Rice, on a writ of habeas corpus. His appearance before the state court is a continuation of his fight for liberty, which failed in the United States supreme court.

Patrick is seeking freedom on the ground that the commutation of his death sentence to life imprisonment by the late Governor Higgins was not warranted in that it was a change to a punishment not provided by statute for the crime of which he was convicted and that the change was to the prisoner's disadvantage in that it was an imposition of a different and greater punishment. His petition says that "life imprisonment is not only entirely different from but is in fact greater and more horrible to endure than the death penalty, alone prescribed by general law for murder, first degree."

Patrick asserts that his conviction was procured by fraud and collusion of "divers persons of vast influence, power and wealth." His petition for freedom is opposed by the city, county and state authorities.

MYSTERY PARTIALLY SOLVED

Vessel Sunk by the Australia Probably Was the Condor.

Algiers, March 1.—The mystery of the identity of the sailing vessel which was rammed by the Belgian steamer Australia during a storm on Feb. 12 near Alboran Island in the Mediterranean appears now to be solved. Both vessels foundered as a result of the collision, but ten members of the crew of the Australia who had put off in a small boat were picked up by the German steamer Liberia and brought to Algiers. The steamer Australia, which has arrived here, reports having sighted a drifting ship's boat between Cape Falcon and the Habibas islands, off the Algerian coast on Feb. 27, on which was painted the name "Condor, London."

In the boat were five bodies, one of which slid into the sea as the steamer approached. The boat was half swamped and had a tattered sail. The state of the bodies indicated that the men had been dead at least ten days.

WANTED TO QUIT GAMBLING

Italian Who Won at Roulette Is Killed.

East Liverpool, O., March 1.—Because he wanted to quit playing the roulette wheel after winning steadily all day, Theodore Raefen, an Italian laborer, was shot and killed. Pete Stizza of Chester, W. Va., was taken into custody but escaped with two companions who crossed the river by forcing a ferryman at the point of a gun to help them. Later one of the men was captured by the posse chasing him. Eight other Italians were arrested as witnesses, but none will say who fired the fatal shots.

A liar ends by making truth appear like falsehood.—Shenstone.

WARSHIPS REACH NEW YORK

The Rhode Island and New Jersey Arrive There.

New York, March 1.—New Yorkers got the first glimpse of a portion of the "round the world battleship fleet" when the battleships Rhode Island and New Jersey steamed majestically into port and anchored off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, where they will stow powder, shot and shell preparatory to going to navyyards for some minor tinkering and to have themselves arrayed in the service color of gray. After discharging ammunition the Rhode Island will proceed to the Brooklyn navyyard and the New Jersey will go to the Boston yard. The marine observer at Sandy Hook, Captain De La Motte, was the first to congratulate the big ships of war.

When the channel leading to the harbor was reached, Fort Hancock, Wadsworth and Hamilton boomed out a welcoming salute and this was answered by the Rhode Island. The harbor craft then took up the note of welcome and all the way up the bay and until the battleship reached her anchorage the vessel was greeted with the shrill blasts of steam whistles.

The battleship New Jersey, which arrived several hours later, received a similar greeting.

Thousands of persons lined the Bay Ridge and Staten Island shores to take a look at the ships and to greet and chat with such of the sailors as came ashore.

TRAIN MAKES FAST TIME

Goes Over Seven Hundred Miles in Less Than Eighteen Hours.

Pittsburg, March 1.—A special train bearing a theatrical company made the distance of 755 miles from Boston to Pittsburg in the record smashing time of 17 1/2 hours. Fifty-five minutes were clipped off the best previous time between Buffalo and Pittsburg, the time being 5 hours and 10 minutes. From Youngstown, O., to Pittsburg, the 65 miles were covered in 67 minutes, including starting time and two slow-ups on the way. This is the best time ever made on this division and is said to rank among world's records for heavy train speed. The train consisted of five heavily loaded baggage cars, five Pullman sleepers, a diner and an ordinary coach. Two engines pulled the special. Officials who accompanied the train stated that eliminating the time spent changing engines, and threading their way through big railroad yards, a speed approximating 60 miles an hour was maintained for the entire distance.

VICTIMS WILL BE ON HAND

When Maybray Arrives at Council Bluffs From Little Rock.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 1.—When J. C. Maybray is brought here Tuesday evening from Little Rock, Ark., he will find awaiting him a number of men from different parts of the country who have come to identify him in connection with alleged swindling operations carried on here last year. Inspector Swenson, who has had charge of the case for the government, and other federal agents have started over the country to obtain the statements of various victims of the swindlers.

Advices have been received by the local authorities from several persons who say they will be here to identify Maybray if possible and to offer their testimony.

Inspector Swenson says that every day brings information from additional victims.

RUSSIA SENDS A NOTE TO SERBIA

Asks Her to Await Decision of the Powers.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The Russian government has sent a telegram to the Serbian government counselling Serbia to renounce all territorial claims and await the decision of the powers. According to the official version this advice was given in response to a note from the new Serbian cabinet, assuring Russia of Serbia's sincere desire for peace and firm resolve to abstain from any provocation or aggressive acts.

The Russian minister at Belgrade has been instructed, in communicating to the Serbian government the message from his government, to assure Serbia that its demands for territorial compensation would find neither sympathy nor support among the powers and might entail war with Austria-Hungary.

WITNESS IN THE HAINS CASE

Dies Protesting That He Told the Truth.

New York, March 1.—James J. Tierney, the principal witness for the defense in the murder trial of Thornton Hains, died after a five days' illness of pneumonia at his home in Bay Side, L. I.

He passed his last conscious hours upon his deathbed protesting that he had told the truth at the trial when he swore that Thornton Hains did not draw his pistol until after his brother had ceased firing at the slain Annis.

"I was the only one who told that right," gasped the dying witness to his family and the physicians about him, "and I was not bribed to tell it either. Mrs. Annis was not on the float when Captain Hains killed her husband. I told the truth about that, too, and I want the world to know it. I say it again when I know I am about to die."

NEW RATE NOW IN EFFECT

Reduction in Postage Between United States and Newfoundland.

Washington, March 1.—Beginning today a 2-cent stamp will carry a letter from Newfoundland to the United States and vice versa, instead of 5 cents as heretofore.

The reform is said to be due largely to the efforts of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the famous missionary to Labrador, who recently interviewed President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Meyer on the subject.

Waiter Kills a Cook.

Chicago, March 1.—Because he cooked two eggs instead of three, as ordered, Charles Kelly, a cook in a downtown restaurant here, was stabbed and instantly killed by G. C. Harbaugh, the waiter who did the ordering. Harbaugh used a large butcher knife and the blade penetrated Kelly's heart.

of the Powers.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The Russian government has sent a telegram to the Serbian government counselling Serbia to renounce all territorial claims and await the decision of the powers. According to the official version this advice was given in response to a note from the new Serbian cabinet, assuring Russia of Serbia's sincere desire for peace and firm resolve to abstain from any provocation or aggressive acts.

The Russian minister at Belgrade has been instructed, in communicating to the Serbian government the message from his government, to assure Serbia that its demands for territorial compensation would find neither sympathy nor support among the powers and might entail war with Austria-Hungary.

WITNESS IN THE HAINS CASE

Dies Protesting That He Told the Truth.

New York, March 1.—James J. Tierney, the principal witness for the defense in the murder trial of Thornton Hains, died after a five days' illness of pneumonia at his home in Bay Side, L. I.

He passed his last conscious hours upon his deathbed protesting that he had told the truth at the trial when he swore that Thornton Hains did not draw his pistol until after his brother had ceased firing at the slain Annis.

"I was the only one who told that right," gasped the dying witness to his family and the physicians about him, "and I was not bribed to tell it either. Mrs. Annis was not on the float when Captain Hains killed her husband. I told the truth about that, too, and I want the world to know it. I say it again when I know I am about to die."

NEW RATE NOW IN EFFECT

Reduction in Postage Between United States and Newfoundland.

Washington, March 1.—Beginning today a 2-cent stamp will carry a letter from Newfoundland to the United States and vice versa, instead of 5 cents as heretofore.

The reform is said to be due largely to the efforts of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the famous missionary to Labrador, who recently interviewed President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Meyer on the subject.

Waiter Kills a Cook.

Chicago, March 1.—Because he cooked two eggs instead of three, as ordered, Charles Kelly, a cook in a downtown restaurant here, was stabbed and instantly killed by G. C. Harbaugh, the waiter who did the ordering. Harbaugh used a large butcher knife and the blade penetrated Kelly's heart.

Wm. Sinclair was in the municipal this afternoon on two charges. One was that of having his saloon, (the National hotel bar) open after hours a week ago Saturday night. The other charge was that of violating the city ordinance regarding screens. Both cases were set for hearing Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Wm. Grossman was also in court on the charge of violating the same ordinance. He demanded a jury trial and the case was set for Friday at 2 p. m.

Geo. H. Gardner came over Saturday afternoon from Park Rapids to spend Sunday with his parents. He will return there tomorrow and go with Judge Wright to Grand Rapids to have a hearing in the matter of appointing appraisers in right of way proceedings. Mr. Gardner stated that it has been found necessary to adjourn court in Beltrami county because of the fact that there is no money to pay the expenses of the court in civil cases. Judge Stanton will reopen court there later to try the criminal calendar.

Mrs. A. L. Sinclair, of Long Lake, had a narrow escape from death by fire Saturday morning. She was standing with her back to the kitchen stove when the back of her dress caught fire. She tried to put it out but could not and ran from the house screaming. Mr. Sinclair ran from the barn and seized her and rolled her in a snow bank, extinguishing the fire. Her clothing was nearly all burned off her back and her hands, back and limbs blistered badly, but it is not thought that her injuries are dangerous.

J. H. Krekelberg is now nicely located in pleasant office rooms in the new Citizens' State bank building. C. J. Ostrum, the traveling representative of the Kelly-How-Thompson Co., has also rented an office room there, as have Albright & Hartley for their insurance business and Judge Albright for his law office. M. E. Ryan is now about settled in his new quarters in that building. It is reported also that the pleasant corner office room over the bank entrance has been reserved for C. N. Parker for a private office. Mr. Dunn stated this morning before leaving for the cities that while the store rooms were probably all rented he was not at liberty as yet to mention the names of the prospective tenants.

Mrs. C. B. Rowley entertained the four original letter carriers of the Brainerd free delivery service, at tea Sunday evening in honor of John Thompson who left for Ranier, Minn., where he goes into the U. S. customs service as collector. The guests were Messrs. John Thompson, J. J. Nolan, Russell Cass and Carl Brockway. It is a somewhat remarkable fact that though the service was established seven years ago last November this is the first resignation from the service, nor has there been the loss of any carrier by death. At the time of the establishment of the service there were but three regular carriers, Mr. Brockway being sub-carrier. The growth of the city has increased the duties of the carriers so that six regular carriers are employed. The tea given by Mrs. Rowley was a thoroughly enjoyable affair and the boys speak of her as a royal hostess.

TRIED TO BE JOCOSE.

Snicker Was In a Jovial Mood and Hungry as Well.

BUT HE SPOILED HIS MEAL.

By the Time He Managed to Order His Breakfast the Glow of Genial Good Humor He Tried to Shed Around Him Had Turned to Gloom.

Mr. Snicker is well known in his home town as the most facetious man in seventeen counties. His method of expressing what ideas he has is entirely along lines of pure jocosity, but now and then his wit falls upon unappreciative ears. On a recent visit to New York Mr. Snicker arrived rather early in the morning, and the pangs of hunger would brook so little delay that he went immediately upon his arrival to a prominent hotel in the vicinity of the station for his breakfast.

"Good morning, Henri," he chortled in his usual salubrious manner to the waiter as the latter hung his hat on a hook over his table. "Has the butcher come yet?"

"Ze what, sir?" asked the waiter, with a puzzled look on his face, for he was not used to Snickers.

"The butcher," said Snicker, with a merry wink in his left eye. "You know—the chap who brings the food. I thought perhaps—"

"Wait one moment, sir," said the waiter, his perplexity growing deeper. "I will bring ze head waiter, sir."

"Oh, never mind," Snicker began, but the waiter had departed to return in about three minutes with the head waiter.

"What is it, sir?" asked the latter, with a great show of civil interest.

"Oh, nothing," returned Snicker rather sheepishly. "I just asked Henri here if the butcher had arrived yet, fearing that possibly—"

"The butcher, sir?" repeated the head waiter, like his subordinate, very much mystified.

"Yes," said Snicker, with a faint smile, which he hoped the head waiter would find contagious. "I was only joking."

"Wait till I find ze superintendent," said the head waiter courteously. "I have no doubt we can accommodate monsieur if we can only find out what it is that he wants. I will send for him."

Snickers again started in to explain the mere facetious bearing of his inquiry, but the head waiter, too, had sped away in search of a superior officer who might be expected to be equal to this new and unexpected emergency.

Several omnibus boys and Snicker's waiter as well were dispatched to the kitchen and elsewhere to find him, but apparently without success. Five, ten, fifteen minutes elapsed, and Snicker began to feel that it did not really pay to be as funny as he could under all circumstances.

Finally, however, the head waiter returned and courteously explained that the superintendent had not yet arrived at his post of duty, but that he had telephoned up to the office for the manager of the hotel, who, he assured him, would be down in a very few moments.

"He is rather busy at this time of the morning, sir," he vouchsafed, "but he said he would be down right away."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Snicker ruefully. "You'd better head him off if you can. You see, when I asked if the butcher had come yet, it was only meant as a joke."

"Ah, here is the manager," interrupted the head waiter as a tall, impressive gentleman with a majestic front loomed up in the dining room door and made his way across to Snicker's table. "This is the gentleman, Mr. Pingleton," the head waiter added when the manager had reached Snicker's side.

"Good morning, sir," said the manager breezily. "I hope there is no trouble, sir. I am sorry to have kept you waiting, but this is the busy end of the day with me getting things started along, and our dining room superintendent, I regret to say, is off duty this morning. What can we do for you, sir?"

"I—I want a hard boiled egg and some Lyonnaise potatoes," said Snicker.—John Kendrick Bangs in Lippincott's Magazine.

WEBSTER AND CHOATE.

The Latter a Rapid Fire Maxim, the Former a Thirteen Inch Gun.

"Probably no educational institution in our country has ever graduated two more eminent and eloquent lawyers than old Dartmouth college gave us in Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate," says a writer in Our Dumb Animals. "It was my privilege as a member of the Suffolk bar to attend many years ago the trial of one of the most important cases of the year in our supreme judicial court at Boston.

"On the two sides were arrayed some half a dozen of our most eminent lawyers. Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate, as it happened, were on the same side.

"A hostile witness was put on by the other side, some of whose evidence was of the utmost importance to Webster and Choate, if it could be obtained, and Choate undertook the task of obtaining it. No man at our bar had more profound skill in cross examination, and the questions he put to the witness were like the fire of a Maxim gun, but in every instance he failed to get the evidence he wanted and finally sat down in despair.

"Then Webster, who had been sitting in his great armchair, apparently about half asleep, as though taking no interest in the case whatever, slowly arose to his feet, put his great eyes on the hostile witness, asked him in the most serious tone a single question and brought instantly the required answer. Then as quietly he sat down and apparently went about half asleep again. It was a scene photographed on my mind, never to be forgotten.

"The difference between Webster and Choate cannot better be explained as it rests in my mind than to compare Choate to a Maxim gun raining bullets of eloquence wherever he chose and Webster to a great gun that can send out a thirteen inch shell to penetrate an ironclad.

"It was wonderful to listen to Choate. I remember a case in which an ordinary lawyer would have simply said to the court that he moved a postponement of the case because witness So-and-so was sick, but in this case Choate arose and commenced by saying that his important witness was on a bed of sickness and perhaps a bed of death and so went whirling up almost to the skies on this simple motion, to the great interest of everybody that heard him.

"Our old chief justice, Judge Shaw, one of the greatest lawyers of his time, was a plain, practical man, and looked in his old age as he sat on the bench somewhat like a Chinese idol, and he used to frequently cut off Mr. Choate's eloquence by calling him back to the plain facts."

His Line of Study.
"My boy is undecided about what collegiate course to take."

"Um!"

"What would you advise?"

"That depends. Does he want to build up his back muscles or his wind?"—Kansas City Independent.

The entire carrier service of the city, including two former sub-carriers who are not in the service, was at the depot today to bid John Thompson good luck and good-bye on his departure for his new home at Rainer.

Misses Ruth Foley and Dorris Gwathmey, of Aitkin, have been spending a few days in Brainerd, the former being a guest at the home of Mrs. Severn Koop and the later at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. White.

Helmer Nordstrom, of Pine River, who has been sick with typhoid pneumonia since November, a part of the time in a Walker hospital was brought to the home of his sister, Mrs. Louis Schaffer, in this city today to recuperate.

The Women's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church will give a silhouette party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Fred Slipp, N. Fourth street. A competent artist will take your picture. Refreshments will be served and a collection taken.

J. G. Mock, of Fargo, was in the city yesterday visiting his son, R. W. Mock, who has been in the Northern Pacific hospital for some weeks recovering from an operation for hernia. He is now able to be up and expects to return to work in a week or so.

Miss Gertrude Hallquist left today noon for Kansas City to visit a month with her brother, Ralph Hallquist, who will graduate the last of this month from the Kansas City Veterinary College. Miss Hallquist will remain to attend the graduating exercises.

Miss Carrie Morrison left today noon for Chicago to buy goods for Mrs. Grandmeyer's millinery parlors. From there she will go to the west or southwest for about six weeks on account of her health which has been poor all winter. Her many friends hope she may return much improved in health.

W. H. Andrews and C. F. Taylor, of Outing, came down today on business. Mr. Andrews reports that the winter has been quiet there but that prospects are good for the summer. He has sold several lots to parties who will erect summer cottages and he reports that the saw mill at Outing will start up again in the near future.

Louis Larson, who has been night porter at the Ransford for several months resigned his position Saturday and went to Crow Wing today to visit at the home of his uncle, Nels Gunderson, for a couple of days before returning to Osakis where he will manage one of his father's farms this summer.

The marble work of the fixtures of the new Citizens' State Bank arrived a few days ago and is being rapidly put in place. A car load of the wood work for the fixtures has just arrived and was being placed in the building this forenoon. It is expected that the bank may be able to get into the building in about three weeks.

Christopher Fisher, aged 84, the father of Mrs. J. C. Rathvon, of Deerwood, who was brought to this city Friday for an operation for hernia, died yesterday. The remains will be taken to Deerwood for interment, but because of the uncertain time of the arrival of a son from the west the time of the funeral has not yet been fixed.

Wm. Sinclair was in the municipal this afternoon on two charges. One was that of having his saloon, (the National hotel bar) open after hours a week ago Saturday night. The other charge was that of violating the city ordinance regarding screens. Both cases were set for hearing Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Wm. Grossman was also in court on the charge of violating the same ordinance. He demanded a jury trial and the case was set for Friday at 2 p. m.

Geo. H. Gardner came over Saturday afternoon from Park Rapids to spend Sunday with his parents. He will return there tomorrow and go with Judge Wright to Grand Rapids to have a hearing in the matter of appointing appraisers in right of way proceedings. Mr. Gardner states that it has been found necessary to adjourn court in Beltrami county because of the fact that there is no money to pay the expenses of the court in civil cases. Judge Stanton will reopen court there later to try the criminal calendar.

Mrs. A. L. Sinclair, of Long Lake, had a narrow escape from death by fire Saturday morning. She was standing with her back to the kitchen stove when the back of her dress caught fire. She tried to put it out but could not and ran from the house screaming. Mr. Sinclair ran from the barn and seized her and rolled her in a snow bank, extinguishing the fire. Her clothing was nearly all burned off her back and her hands, back and limbs blistered badly, but it is not thought that her injuries are dangerous.

J. H. Krekelberg is now nicely located in pleasant office rooms in the new Citizens' State bank building. C. J. Ostrum, the traveling representative of the Kelly-How-Thompson Co., has also rented an office room there, as have Albright & Hartley for their insurance business and Judge Albright for his law office. M. E. Ryan is now about settled in his new quarters in that building. It is reported also that the pleasant corner office room over the bank entrance has been reserved for C. N. Parker for a private office. Mr. Dunn stated this morning before leaving for the cities that while the store rooms were probably all rented he was not at liberty as yet to mention the names of the prospective tenants.

Mrs. C. B. Rowley entertained the four original letter carriers of the Brainerd free delivery service, at tea Sunday evening in honor of John Thompson who left for Ranier, Minn., where he goes into the U. S. customs service as collector. The guests were Messrs. John Thompson, J. J. Nolan, Russell Case and Carl Brockway. It is a somewhat remarkable fact that though the service was established seven years ago last November this is the first resignation from the service, nor has there been the loss of any carrier by death. At the time of the establishment of the service there were but three regular carriers, Mr. Brockway being sub-carrier. The growth of the city has increased the duties of the carriers so that six regular carriers are employed. The tea given by Mrs. Rowley was a thoroughly enjoyable affair and the boys speak of her as a royal hostess.

TRIED TO BE JOCOSE.

Snickers Was in a Jovial Mood and Hungry as Well.

BUT HE SPOILED HIS MEAL.

By the Time He Managed to Order His Breakfast the Glow of Genial Good Humor He Tried to Shed Around Him Had Turned to Gloom.

Mr. Snicker is well known in his home town as the most facetious man in seventeen counties. His method of expressing what ideas he has is entirely along lines of pure jocosity, but now and then his wit falls upon unappreciative ears. On a recent visit to New York Mr. Snicker arrived rather early in the morning, and the pangs of hunger would brook so little delay that he went immediately upon his arrival to a prominent hotel in the vicinity of the station for his breakfast.

"Good morning, Henri," he chortled in his usual salubrious manner to the waiter as the latter hung his hat on a hook over his table. "Has the butcher come yet?"

"Ze what, sir?" asked the waiter, with a puzzled look on his face, for he was not used to Snickers.

"The butcher," said Snicker, with a merry wink in his left eye. "You know—the chap who brings the food. I thought perhaps—"

"Wait one moment, sir," said the waiter, his perplexity growing deeper. "I will bring ze head waiter, sir."

"Oh, never mind," Snicker began, but the waiter had departed to return in about three minutes with the head waiter.

"What is it, sir?" asked the latter, with a great show of civil interest.

"Oh, nothing," returned Snicker rather sheepishly. "I just asked Henri here if the butcher had arrived yet, fearing that possibly—"

"The butcher, sir?" repeated the head waiter, like his subordinate, very much mystified.

"Yes," said Snicker, with a faint smile, which he hoped the head waiter would find contagious. "I was only joking."

"Wait till I find ze superintendent," said the head waiter courteously. "I have no doubt we can accommodate monsieur if we can only find out what it is that he wants. I will send for him."

Snickers again started in to explain the mere facetious bearing of his inquiry, but the head waiter, too, had sped away in search of a superior officer who might be expected to be equal to this new and unexpected emergency.

Several omnibus boys and Snicker's waiter as well were dispatched to the kitchen and elsewhere to find him, but apparently without success. Five, ten, fifteen minutes elapsed, and Snicker began to feel that it did not really pay to be as funny as he could under all circumstances.

Finally, however, the head waiter returned and courteously explained that the superintendent had not yet arrived at his post of duty, but that he had telephoned up to the office for the manager of the hotel, who, he assured him, would be down in a very few moments.

"He is rather busy at this time of the morning, sir," he vouchsafed, "but he said he would be down right away."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Snicker ruefully. "You'd better head him off if you can. You see, when I asked if the butcher had come yet, it was only meant as a joke."

"Ah, here is the manager," interrupted the head waiter as a tall, impressive gentleman with a majestic front loomed up in the dining room door and made his way across to Snicker's table. "This is the gentleman, Mr. Pingleton," the head waiter added when the manager had reached Snicker's side.

"Good morning, sir," said the manager breezily. "I hope there is no trouble, sir. I am sorry to have kept you waiting, but this is the busy end of the day with me getting things started along, and our dining room superintendent, I regret to say, is off duty this morning. What can we do for you, sir?"

"I—I—want a hard boiled egg and some Lyonnais potatoes," said Snicker.—John Kendrick Bangs in Lippincott's Magazine.

WEBSTER AND CHOATE.

The Latter a Rapid Fire Maxim, the Former a Thirteen Inch Gun.

"Probably no educational institution in our country has ever graduated two more eminent and eloquent lawyers than old Dartmouth college gave us in Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate," says a writer in Our Dumb Animals. "It was my privilege as a member of the Suffolk bar to attend many years ago the trial of one of the most important cases of the year in our supreme judicial court at Boston.

"On the two sides were arrayed some half a dozen of our most eminent lawyers. Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate, as it happened, were on the same side.

"A hostile witness was put on by the other side, some of whose evidence was of the utmost importance to Webster and Choate, if it could be obtained, and Choate undertook the task of obtaining it. No man at our bar had more profound skill in cross examination, and the questions he put to the witness were like the fire of a Maxim gun, but in every instance he failed to get the evidence he wanted and finally sat down in despair.

"Then Webster, who had been sitting in his great armchair, apparently about half asleep, as though taking no interest in the case whatever, slowly arose to his feet, put his great eyes on the hostile witness, asked him in the most serious tone a single question and brought instantly the required answer. Then as quietly he sat down and apparently went about half asleep again. It was a scene photographed on my mind, never to be forgotten.

"The difference between Webster and Choate cannot better be explained as it rests in my mind than to compare Choate to a Maxim gun raining bullets of eloquence wherever he chose and Webster to a great gun that can send out a thirteen inch shell to penetrate an ironclad.

"It was wonderful to listen to Choate. I remember a case in which an ordinary lawyer would have simply said to the court that he moved a postponement of the case because witness So-and-so was sick, but in this case Choate arose and commenced by saying that his important witness was on a bed of sickness and perhaps a bed of death and so went whirling up almost to the skies on this simple motion, to the great interest of everybody that heard him.

"Our old chief justice, Judge Shaw, one of the greatest lawyers of his time, was a plain, practical man, and looked in his old age as he sat on the bench somewhat like a Chinese idol, and he used to frequently cut off Mr. Choate's eloquence by calling him back to the plain facts."

ESTATE MAY CAUSE LITIGATION

Through Efforts of Con O'Neil to Wrest Estate From Widow of Frank O'Neil

THRICE MARRIED ONCE DIVORCED

Question of Who Deceased's Legal Heirs are May be Settled in Courts

The attempts of Con O'Neil, of this city to secure possession of the estate of his brother, the late Frank O'Neil, of Bemidji, have brought to light curious complications concerning the estate and may cause litigation, though there seems no possibility of the brother securing any share of the estate however it may be settled. The rather romantic facts in the life of the late Frank O'Neil and his matrimonial experiences are about as follows according to the statement of W. A. M. Johnston, clerk of the district court and of attorneys who have become identified with the case:

Frank O'Neil was married in Wisconsin to a woman whom he afterwards deserted, coming to Brainerd to reside. While here he was again married without the formality of divorce. Later he secured a divorce in this city on the grounds of desertion, from the first wife and was remarried. About ten days ago he died at Bemidji, intestate, and leaving among other property a sum of money, said to be $1700, in one of the Bemidji banks. This money the brother, Con O'Neil, is said to have notified the bank not to pay over to the widow, claiming, it is reported, that he was the only legal heir of the deceased.

An examination of the records of Crow Wing county show the marriage, then the divorce from the first wife, then the remarriage to the second, W. H. Mantor, then municipal judge having performed both marriages. It was at first the claim of Con O'Neil that there had been but one marriage to the second wife and that the one performed before the divorce was granted. His chances of securing the estate or any part of it, however, are apparently nullified by the fact that though the first wife remarried after the divorce and now lives in New York, yet if the divorce was not valid, then her marriage with her second husband is void and she is the widow of Frank O'Neil. Besides this there were two children by the first marriage, according to the reports, but they are said to have been adopted by other parties and whether or not this would bar them from the participation in their father's estate is a question. The divorce and remarriage would certainly not deprive them of their rights.

The illegality of the first marriage to the second wife was cured by the second marriage if the divorce was valid, but there is, it is said by attorneys, a decision of the supreme court which has held that the courts of one state have not jurisdiction in divorce cases over parties who are residents of other states, which may render the divorce and second marriage void and the divorced wife, supposed the wife of another man, the true widow and with her children the sole heirs of the property. Taken altogether it is a complicated mixup which would probably never have been brought to light but for the attempts of the brother to secure possession of the property. It is said that one of the valuable assets of the estate is a cause of action against the Crookston Lumber Company, in whose employ the deceased was when he received the injuries which caused his death.

"My three year old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolush, Casimer, Wis. H. P. Dunn's drug store.

SHIP THIS SEASON

Belief Expressed That the Cuyuna Range will Have at Least one Shipping Mine This Year

B. Magoffin, Jr., of Deerwood, who was in the city between trains today, expressed the opinion that there would be ore shipped from the Cuyuna range during the present season. The unsatisfactory condition of the iron trade would, not, he believed, affect the Cuyuna range as much as it would the producing ranges as the work of development would go on nearly unchecked. He stated that in several instances where drills had been used to determine barren rock, so as to get the shafts at one side of the ore body the drills have struck ore and compelled the changing of the site of the proposed shafts as it is important that the shaft be outside the ore body though close to it.

Battleship Without Funnels.

The keel plate of the British battleship Indefatigable was laid down at Devonport, England, the other afternoon. Although the armament and speed of this new vessel will be similar to that of the latest battleship cruisers, she will be without funnels, and beyond her tripod masts, gun turrets and bridges the upper deck will be as clear as was the case with the old sailing ships when their sails were stowed away. The Indefatigable will be the first vessel of her type in the British navy. It is possible to do away with funnels because of the introduction of internal combustion engines as a propelling power.

Religion as Handmaid of Health.

The present tendency to cultivate health in cultivating religion is getting many recruits. Even highly conservative clergymen preach sanitation as well as theology. Taking care of the health now forms part of the instruction in convent schools and in private schools which, though nonsectarian, are conducted on a Christian basis. As for the beauty specialists, the first thing they learn is whether the patient lives normally or if certain defects of the skin have not a foundation in the breaking of health rules. The one who cultivates beauty of face and form must live a life near perfection. Leaders of religious thought appreciate the good results apparent from the "religion and health" propaganda.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN A BAD WRECK

Baggage Car on Train From Cities Goes Two Miles with Broken Journal

HAPPENED SATURDAY NIGHT

Accident was Discovered Near Watab and Train Delayed Nearly all Night

One of the most peculiar and fortunate accidents in the annals of Northern Pacific railroading occurred to 9, the passenger train leaving the twin cities for Brainerd about 6 o'clock Saturday night. When almost to Watab it was found that one of the journals on the baggage car was broken and the boxing gone. It had run two miles with one of the equalizer rods dragging in the snow and the other broken. When it was discovered and an attempt made to get the car into the clear at Watab it was derailed. The car was pulled into the clear on the ties and as it luckily happened there was a freight train with the wrecker on the side track at Watab. This was switched out, the car picked up and a freight truck placed under it. The car was then brought to Brainerd the train arriving about 5 o'clock in the morning. Old railroad men say that it is not one chance in one thousand that a car with a broken journal would run one-tenth part the distance that one did without jumping the track, and had it done so a disastrous wreck must have resulted.

A Religious Author's Statement

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." H. P. Dunn's drug store. mwf

THE MEASLES CANNIBAL.

Method of a Vancouver Island Tribe to Drive Away Disease.

A few years ago an epidemic of measles broke out among the Indian tribes living on Vancouver Island, in British Columbia, not far from Fort Rupert, and the shamans or medicine men came to the conclusion that a cannibal sorcerer, whom they termed the "hamatsu" (measles cannibal), was slaying their children to eat them and that he would continue to do so until he was killed.

As they could not slay a ghost in his own person they arranged a ceremony in which one of their number posed as the cannibal and was treated as they would have liked to treat the real foe. This fact of a substitute was, of course, not made public, only the medicine men knowing the truth of the matter.

Against a wall of rock was painted an imitation opening, in the center of which the "cannibal" was fastened. At the proper time, after going through various incantations, a covering was jerked away, exposing the cannibal apparently springing through the solid rock. He was promptly grasped by two of the priests, who dragged him out and rushed him through a fire which was burning in front of the place and which was surrounded by all the members of the tribe beating drums and singing at the top of their voices. By some jugglery the cannibal was got rid of, and the people were told that he had flown away through the air and would not come back.

After this ceremony had been repeated several times to put an end to other epidemics, which were only too prevalent among the Indians, it grew into a sort of annual affair, managed by the members of a secret society whose members know that the supposed "hamatsu" was only a man.—Scientific American.

A World's Fair For Canada.

"Canada probably will hold the first world's fair in its history the summer of 1912." G. A. Glines, a capitalist and financial broker of Winnipeg, Man., said at the Hotel Baltimore in Kansas City the other morning. "It will be in Winnipeg and will be on the scale of the Portland (Ore.) exposition and will commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the settlement of the Red river valley."

WAGNER MADE IT HOT.

The Composer's Trick When Money and Firewood Were Scarce.

Here is an anecdote of Wagner's early life as related by Liszt: "Wagner, Bulow and I were all quite young when we lived together in Leipzig and had a good time—that is, I enjoyed myself, but Wagner was already fermenting with his political and philosophical ideas, and our prosaic circumstances offered little ground for the idealists of the future. We called Bulow 'Kritikus,' and we, especially I, always feared his sharp tongue a little. Of course all of us had little money, but Wagner put our slender purse to great strains. He could not bear money worries, and we let him feel them as little as possible.

"Once, after a long autumn, it became cold suddenly, and Wagner with his 'nerves' suffered from the sudden change in the temperature. He demanded a heated room at once. For two whole days the debate raged between him and Bulow as to the immediate purchase of wood with our reduced purse.

"I was not asked, because Bulow knew that I would yield, but he as treasurer contended that it was ridiculous to buy wood in the month of September. 'But I am freezing,' said Wagner in a rage, to which the inexorable Bulow suggested that he go out and get warm by running or warm himself by his muse. Laughing at his cheap, spiteful advice, Bulow and I went out, but when we returned after two hours we were thunderstruck to find Wagner in the room heated to suffocation. He sat at his writing table deep in his work. His face was red.

"Where"—began Bulow, but the words stuck in his throat, for a glance around the room showed him how Wagner had helped himself. Several chairs and our work tables lay on the floor, permanently crippled. Wagner had cut off their legs and made the fire with them. Bulow was speechless with rage, but I stood at the door and laughed till the tears came at this ingenious way of helping oneself. Bulow lamented that we would have to replace the landlady's chairs and tables and that he could not sit down or work.

"Wagner answered spitefully: 'I have what I needed! Fellows like you, who do nothing but go walking, need neither chairs nor tables. If you had given me the money right off, your valuable furniture would still be in existence. You wished it so! Firewood would have been cheaper!'"

To Cure Wrinkles.

"Look at a paralytic if you think wrinkles incurable," said a beauty doctor. "On the side he is paralyzed all his wrinkles disappear. Though he be sixty or seventy, his profile on that side is the profile of a youth. So the paralytic shows us how to cure our wrinkles—namely, by keeping our facial muscles still. If we keep our faces in perfect repose, never laughing when the comedian sings his best song, never weeping when wife or sweetheart dies, we will have no wrinkles whatever. The skin wouldn't wrinkle if it were not exposed. The skin of the body is much disturbed by action of the muscles underneath—as at the knee, for instance—yet this unexposed skin never wrinkles. Not being exposed to the bad influence of sun and wind, it has not lost the oil and the elasticity of childhood. And that's where I come in with my creams and unguents and massages."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

STEERING BY SOUND.

How Blindfolded Pilot Guided Tug by Submarine Bell Signals.

WAS NOT DECEIVED ONCE

Vessel Taken Over Three Miles to Ambrose Channel Lightship, In New York Bay—New Apparatus Will Help Ships In Fog.

A man blindfolded piloted the tug Eugene F. Moran from a point over three miles out in the open sea to the Ambrose channel lightship, in New York bay, the other day, picking up the light vessel by the sound of the submarine signal bell and following the course by the guiding sound of the bell ringing some thirty feet below the surface.

The Eugene F. Moran left pier 2 North river, New York, soon after 10 o'clock in the morning, with shipping men and experts on board. The tug boat James H. Moran went along, having on board a signal bell apparatus for the trials.

The tug went down the lower bay to the Ambrose lightship and ran along side to request that the submarine bell on board be kept ringing.

In a short time the man who had the telephone headpiece connected with the microphone receivers at the bow of the tug reported:

"There goes the bell now."

The Moran continued to a point about three miles beyond the Hook and, after Assistant Engineer Fay had been blindfolded, the Moran was put out of her course to confuse him, while the receivers were put at his ears.

There was a short interval, and then Fay said to Captain Reilly of the tug, "The bell is off the starboard side."

The course was changed, and then Fay reported the sound as coming from the port side. Again the wheel swung around, and again Fay reported on the direction of the bell.

"A little to port," he ordered, and then, as the tug swung over, he said: "Now I hear the bell from port and starboard. The lightship lies dead ahead. Keep that course, captain."

So the blindfolded man kept her to the course. Occasionally he would order a trifle more to port or to starboard as the sound indicated that the bow was swinging a point off the line to the lightship.

As the tug approached the lightship the test was made complete. The tug swung from one point of the compass to another. The blindfolded man was never fooled. He called the bells as accurately as a hotel clerk calls the indicator.

"Now we've got him," said Captain Reilly as he pointed the Moran on one course.

"Now where is the lightship?" demanded the scoffers.

"Almost ahead," said Fay, listening intently. "Dead ahead," he corrected a moment later, and "dead ahead" it was.

Those who crowded into the pilot-house or who had obtained places at the windows watched the guiding of the boat with interest, looking out to see how true the vessel was going on her way to the light vessel. So Fay brought the tug to the Ambrose light.

The company officials explained the working of the submarine signal, and every one on board had a chance to listen to the bell. As another test the James H. Moran was sent ahead about a mile, and she fastened up on the far side of the schooner Goodwin Stoddard, anchored off Staten Island. Her bell was put over the side and started. There was no difficulty in locating the tug by the sound of the bell.

About 100 lightships are now equipped with the submarine bell, and of these forty-nine are along our coast. The lightship bell is hung by davits over the side. It is attached to a case and is operated by compressed air fed through twin rubber hose. The strokes on the bell are automatically controlled, so that each lightship sends out under water her code number. Every lightship has its code number—66 for Nantucket, 45 for Boston bay, 2 for Hen and Chickens, in Buzzard's bay; 39 for Breton's Reef, 68 for the Diamond shoal lightship.

The receiving apparatus is installed in the fore peak and as far below the water line as possible. The receiving mechanism consists of two small tanks fastened to the "skin" of the vessel. In each tank two microphones are placed, immersed in liquid. These microphones receive the sound waves coming through the water and striking against the vessel's side. From these tanks wires run to the battery box, which supplies the power, and from there to the indicator box.

The receiving telephones are similar to the telephone ear pieces now in use. The indicator box, shaped like a clock, is fastened to the wall of the pilot-house. By means of a switch either the port or starboard microphone can be connected with the receiving telephones. A dial shows which side is connected. It was explained that the bell works best at about thirty feet below the surface.

ESTATE MAY CAUSE LITIGATION

Through Efforts of Con O'Neil to Wrest Estate From Widow of Frank O'Neil

THRICE MARRIED ONCE DIVORCED

Question of Who Deceased's Legal Heirs are May be Settled in Courts

The attempts of Con O'Neil, of this city to secure possession of the estate of his brother, the late Frank O'Neil, of Bemidji, have brought to light curious complications concerning the estate and may cause litigation, though there seems no possibility of the brother securing any share of the estate however it may be settled. The rather romantic facts in the life of the late Frank O'Neil and his matrimonial experiences are about as follows according to the statement of W. A. M. Johnston, clerk of the district court and of attorneys who have become identified with the case:

Frank O'Neil was married in Wisconsin to a woman whom he afterwards deserted, coming to Brainerd to reside. While here he was again married without the formality of divorce. Later he secured a divorce in this city on the grounds of desertion, from the first wife and was remarried. About ten days ago he died at Bemidji, intestate, and leaving among other property a sum of money, said to be $1700, in one of the Bemidji banks. This money the brother, Con O'Neil, is said to have notified the bank not to pay over to the widow, claiming, it is reported, that he was the only legal heir of the deceased.

An examination of the records of Crow Wing county show the marriage, then the divorce from the first wife, then the remarriage to the second, W. H. Mantor, then municipal judge having performed both marriages. It was at first the claim of Con O'Neil that there had been but one marriage to the second wife and that the one performed before the divorce was granted. His chances of securing the estate or any part of it, however, are apparently nullified by the fact that though the first wife remarried after the divorce and now lives in New York, yet if the divorce was not valid, then her marriage with her second husband is void and she is the widow of Frank O'Neil. Besides this there were two children by the first marriage, according to the reports, but they are said to have been adopted by other parties and whether or not this would bar them from the participation in their father's estate is a question. The divorce and remarriage would certainly not deprive them of their rights.

The illegality of the first marriage to the second wife was cured by the second marriage if the divorce was valid, but there is, it is said by attorneys, a decision of the supreme court which has held that the courts of one state have not jurisdiction in divorce cases over parties who are residents of other states, which may render the divorce and second marriage void and the divorced wife, supposed the wife of another man, the true widow and with her children the sole heirs of the property. Taken altogether it is a complicated mixup which would probably never have been brought to light but for the attempts of the brother to secure possession of the property. It is said that one of the valuable assets of the estate is a cause of action against the Crookston Lumber Company, in whose employ the deceased was when he received the injuries which caused his death.

"My three year old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. H. P. Dunn's drug store.

SHIP THIS SEASON

Belief Expressed That the Cuyuna Range will Have at Least one Shipping Mine This Year

B. Magoffin, Jr., of Deerwood, who was in the city between trains today, expressed the opinion that there would be ore shipped from the Cuyuna range during the present season. The unsatisfactory condition of the iron trade would, not, he believed, affect the Cuyuna range as much as it would the producing ranges as the work of development would go on nearly unchecked. He stated that in several instances where drills had been used to determine barren rock, so as to get the shafts at one side of the ore body the drills have struck ore and compelled the changing of the site of the proposed shafts as it is important that the shaft be outside the ore body though close to it.

Battleship Without Funnels.

The keel plate of the British battleship Indefatigable was laid down at Devonport, England, the other afternoon. Although the armament and speed of this new vessel will be similar to that of the latest battleship cruisers, she will be without funnels, and beyond her tripod masts, gun turrets and bridges the upper deck will be as clear as was the case with the old sailing ships when their sails were stowed away. The Indefatigable will be the first vessel of her type in the British navy. It is possible to do away with funnels because of the introduction of internal combustion engines as a propelling power.

Religion as Handmaid of Health.

The present tendency to cultivate health in cultivating religion is getting many recruits. Even highly conservative clergymen preach sanitation as well as theology. Taking care of the health now forms part of the instruction in convent schools and in private schools which, though nonsectarian, are conducted on a Christian basis. As for the beauty specialists, the first thing they learn is whether the patient lives normally or if certain defects of the skin have not a foundation in the breaking of health rules. The one who cultivates beauty of face and form must live a life near perfection. Leaders of religious thought appreciate the good results apparent from the "religion and health" propaganda.

HAPPENED SATURDAY NIGHT

Accident was Discovered Near Watab and Train Delayed Nearly all Night

One of the most peculiar and fortunate accidents in the annals of Northern Pacific railroading occurred to 9, the passenger train leaving the twin cities for Brainerd about 6 o'clock Saturday night. When almost to Watab it was found that one of the journals on the baggage car was broken and the boxing gone. It had run two miles with one of the equalizer rods dragging in the snow and the other broken. When it was discovered and an attempt made to get the car into the clear at Watab it was derailed. The car was pulled into the clear on the ties and as it luckily happened there was a freight train with the wrecker on the side track at Watab. This was switched out, the car picked up and a freight truck placed under it. The car was then brought to Brainerd the train arriving about 5 o'clock in the morning. Old railroad men say that it is not one chance in one thousand that a car with a broken journal would run one-tenth part the distance that one did without jumping the track, and had it done so a disastrous wreck must have resulted.

A Religious Author's Statement

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." H. P. Dunn's drug store.

THE MEASLES CANNIBAL.

Method of a Vancouver Island Tribe to Drive Away Disease.

A few years ago an epidemic of measles broke out among the Indian tribes living on Vancouver Island, in British Columbia, not far from Fort Rupert, and the shamans or medicine men came to the conclusion that a cannibal sorcerer, whom they termed the "hamatsu" (measles cannibal), was slaying their children to eat them and that he would continue to do so until he was killed.

As they could not slay a ghost in his own person they arranged a ceremony in which one of their number posed as the cannibal and was treated as they would have liked to treat the real foe. This fact of a substitute was, of course, not made public, only the medicine men knowing the truth of the matter.

Against a wall of rock was painted an imitation opening, in the center of which the "cannibal" was fastened. At the proper time, after going through various incantations, a covering was jerked away, exposing the cannibal apparently springing through the solid rock. He was promptly grasped by two of the priests, who dragged him out and rushed him through a fire which was burning in front of the place and which was surrounded by all the members of the tribe beating drums and singing at the top of their voices. By some jugglery the cannibal was got rid of, and the people were told that he had flown away through the air and would not come back.

After this ceremony had been repeated several times to put an end to other epidemics, which were only too prevalent among the Indians, it grew into a sort of annual affair, managed by the members of a secret society whose members know that the supposed "hamatsu" was only a man.—Scientific American.

A World's Fair For Canada.

"Canada probably will hold the first world's fair in its history the summer of 1912," G. A. "It will be in Winnipeg and will be on the scale of the Portland (Ore.) exposition and will commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the settlement of the Red river valley."

WAGNER MADE IT HOT.

The Composer's Trick When Money and Firewood Were Scarce.

Here is an anecdote of Wagner's early life as related by Liszt: "Wagner, Bulow and I were all quite young when we lived together in Leipzig and had a good time—that is, I enjoyed myself, but Wagner was already fermenting with his political and philosophical ideas, and our prosaic circumstances offered little ground for the idealists of the future. We called Bulow 'Kritikus,' and we, especially I, always feared his sharp tongue a little. Of course all of us had little money, but Wagner put our slender purse to great strains. He could not bear money worries, and we let him feel them as little as possible.

"Once, after a long autumn, it became cold suddenly, and Wagner with his 'nerves' suffered from the sudden change in the temperature. He demanded a heated room at once. For two whole days the debate raged between him and Bulow as to the immediate purchase of wood with our reduced purse.

"I was not asked, because Bulow knew that I would yield, but he as treasurer contended that it was ridiculous to buy wood in the month of September. 'But I am freezing,' said Wagner in a rage, to which the inexorable Bulow suggested that he go out and get warm by running or warm himself by his muse. Laughing at his cheap, spiteful advice, Bulow and I went out, but when we returned after two hours we were thunderstruck to find Wagner in the room heated to suffocation. He sat at his writing table deep in his work. His face was red.

"Where"—began Bulow, but the words stuck in his throat, for a glance around the room showed him how Wagner had helped himself. Several chairs and our work tables lay on the floor, permanently crippled. Wagner had cut off their legs and made the fire with them. Bulow was speechless with rage, but I stood at the door and laughed till the tears came at this ingenious way of helping oneself. Bulow lamented that we would have to replace the landlady's chairs and tables and that he could not sit down or work.

"Wagner answered spitefully: 'I have what I needed! Fellows like you, who do nothing but go walking, need neither chairs nor tables. If you had given me the money right off, your valuable furniture would still be in existence. You wished it so! Firewood would have been cheaper!'"

To Cure Wrinkles.

"Look at a paralytic if you think wrinkles incurable," said a beauty doctor. "On the side he is paralyzed all his wrinkles disappear. Though he be sixty or seventy, his profile on that side is the profile of a youth. So the paralytic shows us how to cure our wrinkles—namely, by keeping our facial muscles still. If we keep our faces in perfect repose, never laughing when the comedian sings his best song, never weeping when wife or sweetheart dies, we will have no wrinkles whatever. The skin wouldn't wrinkle if it were not exposed. The skin of the body is much disturbed by action of the muscles underneath—as at the knee, for instance—yet this unexposed skin never wrinkles. Not being exposed to the bad influence of sun and wind, it has not lost the oil and the elasticity of childhood. And that's where I come in with my creams and unguents and massages."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

IN AID OF FOOTBALL.

Missouri University Faculty Will Offer Prizes For Specialties.

A SPUR TO SPRING PRACTICE.

Trophy Cups For Winners in Punting, Place and Drop Kicking and Tackling—Victorious Athletes Must Be Fall Eligible Only.

The faculty members of the University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo., have come to the aid of football. Clark W. Hetherington, athletic director of the state institution, has received an offer from one of the leading faculty members who desires to keep his name a secret, saying that some members of the faculty of which he is the spokesman desire to come to the aid of the athletic interests of Missouri university, especially along the line of football. To this end they wish to offer a series of prizes to be awarded in spring football competition.

Punting, place kicking, drop kicking and tackling are mentioned as examples of the kind of work they, the faculty members, wish to encourage. The awarding of the prizes, which are to be in the form of trophy cups, is to be entirely in the hands of the athletic department so that Hetherington cannot object to the intrusion of outside aid.

The letter follows:
"It has seemed apparent to some members of the faculty that our football team does not have sufficient time in the fall for the thorough drilling in the elementary details of play that is necessary for the production of a successful team. Being convinced of the advantages to be gained by spring practice in football and desiring to show their interest in the success of Missouri on the gridiron, they beg leave to offer six trophy cups to be used as prizes in a football field day to be held some time this spring.

"It is the desire of the donors that these cups be offered as prizes in a competition consisting of punting, place kicking, drop kicking, tackling and other such events as the athletic department may consider best suited for the development of football skill.
"Since the object in offering these cups is a stimulation to spring practice and the development of players, the donors stipulate that the cups should be awarded only to players who will be eligible in the fall and also to reserve the right to withhold their gift if, in their opinion, the number of men engaged has been too small, the practice not sufficiently systematic or the period of practice preceding the field day too short to produce results of value."

Coch Monlaw says that the offer of the faculty will be accepted on the part of the athletic department. It was the intention of the department to arrange a similar meet last year, but the object was abandoned.—Kansas City Star.

NEGRESS' OPINION OF TAFT.

Joke at President Elect's Expense Told by Booker Washington.

President Elect Taft and Booker T. Washington discussed the negro problem the other night before an audience that packed Carnegie hall, in New York. They had been invited by the Armstrong association, which arranged the meeting, to arouse interest in educational work in the south.

Mr. Taft was the subject of a story told by Dr. Washington in the latter's address, which preceded that of the president elect. Dr. Washington told of having been in Georgia just after Mr. Taft had left there during his recent southern tour and of having visited a house where Mr. Taft had been entertained. The proprietor of the house said, according to Dr. Washington, that after the president elect had left he went to the kitchen and asked the cook, an old negro "auntie," if she knew who had been entertained.

"Deed, boss, I ain't never heard of him before," said the old negress.
"The master of the house was surprised," said Dr. Washington. "He told her what a great man Mr. Taft was, how he had been chosen to head the nation.

"No, boss, I ain't never heard tell of him," said the auntie again. The master of the house started to walk away.
"But wait a minute, boss," exclaimed the negress. "He sholy do look like he's been regular at his meals."

Mr. Taft joined in the laugh that followed this joke at his expense.

Girl Commits Suicide.

Philadelphia, March 1.—Because she was forbidden by her father to associate with a boy with whom she had fallen in love, fifteen-year-old Eleanor Fink committed suicide by drinking poison.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF TAFT?

The President's Greatest Tasks Defined in a National Symposium.

What is the most important task before the new administration under President Taft? What one great thing should be achieved by the incoming Taft administration?

The Christian Herald of New York sent out a letter of inquiry containing these questions to a large number of prominent men and women, all of them representative Americans, and many leaders in their respective fields in the nation's work, including United States senators, congressmen, government officials, governors of states, jurists, mayors, bishops, presidents of universities, authors, artists, admirals, generals and capitalists.

Two hundred replies were received. In these replies no less than forty different legislative and administrative tasks were mentioned as being of first importance in dealing with government and social reform, educational progress, scientific development, purification of politics, bettering the condition of labor and advancing the welfare of all the people, and nearly every correspondent voted more than one subject. Tabulated, the result of the appeal to the public opinion as to the most important task before the new administration stands as follows:

Reduce the tariff.....	105
Conserve natural resources.....	98
Preserve the forests.....	90

MISS ETHEL NOT ENGAGED

Story About Miss Roosevelt Denied by Secretary Loeb.

Washington, March 1.—An emphatic denial of the report that the president's younger daughter, Miss Ethel, is engaged to marry Third Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips, was given out from the White house. Secretary Loeb authorized the statement that Miss Roosevelt is not engaged to be married and he characterized as being without the slightest foundation a story from Boston to that effect. "The report of Miss Roosevelt's engagement is a pure invention," said Mr. Loeb. "There is absolutely no truth in it and you can stamp it as false."

Jury Unable to Agree.

Pittsburg, March 1.—The jury in the graft case in which Councilmen J. C. Wasson, William Brand and John F. Klein are charged with conspiracy, reported that it had been unable to agree on a verdict and was locked up until court again convenes. The accused men are alleged to have accepted a bribe to secure the passage of an ordinance providing for the paving of certain streets with wooden blocks.

OUTLOOK DARK FOR THE SHORTS

Bears in the Wheat Pit Face a "Blue" Week.

CAN FIND NO WAY OUT OF IT

Vainly Endeavoring to Seek a Loop-hole Whereby They May Escape. James A. Patten of Chicago Said to Control the Wheat Market of the World and the Price Is Expected to Soar—Eastern Men Lose Millions.

Chicago, March 1.—A "blue" week begins today for the bears in the wheat pit who have pitted their judgment against that of James A. Patten, who now controls the wheat market of the world.

Wheat went to $1.19 a bushel Saturday, but it is expected to skip by that point within the next forty-eight hours under the careful guidance of Mr. Patten, and the shorts are expected to scramble wildly to save themselves from utter extinction, for Mr. Patten has said forcibly:

"Wheat will go to $1.25 a bushel." In the meantime, while the Chicago shorts are vainly trying to seek a hole whereby they may escape, there is consternation among the "wise men of the East," including "Reggie" Vanderbilt, W. H. Moore, Jesse Livermore, J. Brandt Walker and others of the millionaire plunger set who inhabit Wall street. When wheat touched the $1.19 mark on Saturday the Eastern millionaires faced losses of millions and if it goes to $1.25 a bushel, as Mr. Patten predicts—and so far his predictions have been more than fulfilled—the Wall street bears on wheat will find themselves pinched as they have never been pinched before.

Expected Break in Market.

It is claimed that the four New York plungers mentioned, after listening to the advice of Sidney C. Love, began selling wheat with a confidence born of Mr. Son's declaration that the market would break and that Patten would find himself swamped. They sold when wheat was climbing from $1 to $1.06 a bushel.

It was when wheat was hovering around $1.06 that the strong bear movement began to manifest itself in New York and other parts of the country. Vanderbilt, Moore, Livermore and Walker are supposed to have sold millions of bushels at this figure. As it cannot be bought in million bushel lots for less than $1.19 and the attempt to purchase several million bushels in the open market would send wheat to $1.22 a bushel and even higher, the New York millionaires face a serious problem. They can't buy enough wheat to cover their lines, except of Mr. Patten at any price.

The four New York millionaires are said to be short about 20,000,000 bushels. Their combined losses are now figured at about $2,700,000. If wheat goes to $1.25 and the New Yorkers are still short, their combined losses will reach nearly $4,000,000. However, as the poorest of the four is supposed to be six or seven million, all are well able to stand the loss.

WASHINGTON IS ALL READY

City Gaily Bedecked in Honor of Taft's Inauguration.

Washington, March 1.—Inaugural week was ushered in with Washington ready with gaily bedecked buildings, newly-erected stands and clean-swept streets for the reception of the thousands of patriots who will come here to witness the induction into office of President Taft next Thursday. The advance guard of the unattached delegations began arriving yesterday at the vast union station, where an augmented force of 125 special policemen went on duty for the purpose of preventing the ingress of pickpockets and other undesirables known to them.

With the arrival of the New England delegations, 800 strong, the influx of the organizations which will participate in the inaugural parade will begin.

BLIZZARD RAGES IN FRANCE

Many Deaths Are Reported From Exposure.

Paris, March 1.—Snow has been falling in Paris almost continuously for the past forty-eight hours and a blizzard of unprecedented proportions prevails throughout the whole of France. Many deaths are reported from exposure.

Several inches of snow has fallen in the department of Alpes-Maritimes and the conditions at Cannes and Antibes are exceedingly wintry. Other southern resorts also are suffering from the worst cold snap in years. There are no signs at present of improved weather conditions.

Three Sentenced to Death.

Kiev, Russia, March 1.—A military court has sentenced 3 men to death, 21 to penal servitude and 10 to imprisonment for various terms. All of these men were members of the committee of public safety at Lubny and of the Social Revolutionary organization, among them being Vladimir Shemet, member of the First duma from Poltava, who was sent to the fortress.

BEST TIME IN AUSTRALIA.

View of a Sailor on the Atlantic Fleet's Cruise.

Sailors on the Atlantic fleet of battleships which recently returned to Hampton Roads from its world circling voyage gave the following impressions of the places visited on their cruise:

Out on the flagship Connecticut John Keller of Brooklyn and his pal, Jack Crudden of Taunton, Mass., sat on a gun sponson the other day talking about their cruise.

"Take it from us," said Keller, "that Australia is the country. We had a finer time there than any other place we visited. Those fellows in Melbourne are good sports, all right, and they have a dandy town. You ought to have seen Tommy Burns lick Squires while we were there. Maybe that wasn't some fight. That was the place to celebrate. Maybe we didn't indulge in a few whirls."

"How about Japan?" Keller was asked.
"Oh, Japan is all right," he replied. "That is a pretty good country, but it can't compare with Australia. Those Japanese think they are hot potatoes, but they treated us O. K., and we've got no kick against them. Say, you know we went to Messina, where they had the earthquake, and those Italians think there is nobody in the world like an American. They ought to, for we did the best we could for them."

This talk about Italy roused Crudden of Taunton to speak his mind.

"Sunny Italy they call it, do they?" he exclaimed with fine contempt. "I never saw the sun there at all. There ain't any sunshine there any more than there is here in this fog today. It's a cold, wet place, and that's all there is to Italy."

"Hold on, Jack," interrupted Keller. "How about art? They've got pictures over there that will simply knock your eye out."

"Yes," growled Crudden, "and they have got some statues over there, too, what ain't fit to be seen in public."

"What are you talking about," put in Keller. "You can't seem to remember anything outside of Pompeii. You see, Pompeii is a place what was buried by a volcano about a thousand years or more ago. Jack and me went to see what it was like. Some of the things they've got there I wouldn't let a dog see."

"Are you glad to be home?" the reporter asked.

"Well, I should think!" exclaimed Keller. "But I don't call this home yet. I won't be there either until I strike little old New York. That's the place for me. When I land there I'll be home all right."

BALLOON RACE IN JUNE.

First Grand Prize National Contest Will Be Held in Indianapolis.

America's first grand prize national balloon race will be held in Indianapolis June 5, official announcement of which was made a few days ago by Cortlandt F. Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America. The winner of the race will be regarded as national balloon champion of the United States, the prize being a gold cup valued at $1,000. The race will be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America and in accordance with the governing rules of the International Aeronautic federation.

Aeronauts from any aero club affiliated with the Aero Club of America may participate in the contest, provided they have received licenses as pilots from the parent organization. There are now but eighteen licensed pilots in the United States, but as several aero clubs have organized recently, with new balloons all the time being built, it is thought that several additional aeronauts will qualify as pilots before the date of the race. The balloons will be sent up from the grounds of the Indianapolis motor parkway.

It was originally intended to hold this race in September or October, but as another balloon contest of national importance is to take place in St. Louis the week of Oct. 5 it was decided to hold the grand prize race earlier in the season. The St. Louis race will be held during the celebration of the city's one hundredth anniversary of its incorporation.

WORLD'S BIGGEST MAP.

It Will Be 3,724 Feet Long and Outline Long Island.

The biggest map in the world will be constructed on the south side of the Queensboro bridge, at New York, by the celebration committee. It will be 3,724 feet long and extend from the Manhattan shore to the Long Island City shore. This map will be sixty-nine feet in height. The map will be outlined by electric incandescent lamps and will outline Long Island in red, and the location of the principal towns and cities will be by green lamps.

This gigantic map will not be noticeable by day at a distance, but for one week during the celebration of the opening of the Queensboro bridge it can be seen from almost any point on the East river water frontage.

Backache, Kidney Pain

Pains in the small of the back. There's no mistaking this sign of kidney trouble.

Other indications are frequent urination, pain or smarting when passing water, deposits in the urine, headache and loss of flesh. Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills overcome kidney derangements more promptly and thoroughly than any treatment you can obtain because of their combined and direct action on liver and kidneys.

This letter to prove our claim.
"During eight years of suffering from kidney disease six doctors treated me with little benefit. On the third day after beginning the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills I noticed an improvement and after using three boxes had gained 23 pounds and felt better than I had for nine years. I have told many about my wonderful cure."

IN AID OF FOOTBALL.

Missouri University Faculty Will Offer Prizes For Specialties.

A SPUR TO SPRING PRACTICE.

Trophy Cups For Winners in Punting, Place and Drop Kicking and Tackling—Victorious Athletes Must Be Fall Eligible Only.

The faculty members of the University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo., have come to the aid of football. Clark W. Hetherington, athletic director of the state institution, has received an offer from one of the leading faculty members who desires to keep his name a secret, saying that some members of the faculty of which he is the spokesman desire to come to the aid of the athletic interests of Missouri university, especially along the line of football. To this end they wish to offer a series of prizes to be awarded in spring football competition.

Punting, place kicking, drop kicking and tackling are mentioned as examples of the kind of work they, the faculty members, wish to encourage. The awarding of the prizes, which are to be in the form of trophy cups, is to be entirely in the hands of the athletic department so that Hetherington cannot object to the intrusion of outside aid.

The letter follows: "It has seemed apparent to some members of the faculty that our football team does not have sufficient time in the fall for the thorough drilling in the elementary details of play that is necessary for the production of a successful team. Being convinced of the advantages to be gained by spring practice in football and desiring to show their interest in the success of Missouri on the gridiron, they beg leave to offer six trophy cups to be used as prizes in a football field day to be held some time this spring.

"It is the desire of the donors that these cups be offered as prizes in a competition consisting of punting, place kicking, drop kicking, tackling and other such events as the athletic department may consider best suited for the development of football skill.

"Since the object in offering these cups is a stimulation to spring practice and the development of players, the donors stipulate that the cups should be awarded only to players who will be eligible in the fall and also to reserve the right to withhold their gift if, in their opinion, the number of men engaged has been too small, the practice not sufficiently systematic or the period of practice preceding the field day too short to produce results of value."

Coach Monfaw says that the offer of the faculty will be accepted on the part of the athletic department. It was the intention of the department to arrange a similar meet last year, but the object was abandoned. —Kansas City Star.

NEGRESS' OPINION OF TAFT.

Joke at President Elect's Expense Told by Booker Washington.

President Elect Taft and Booker T. Washington discussed the negro problem the other night before an audience that packed Carnegie hall, in New York. They had been invited by the Armstrong association, which arranged the meeting, to arouse interest in educational work in the south.

Mr. Taft was the subject of a story told by Dr. Washington in the latter's address, which preceded that of the president elect. Dr. Washington told of having been in Georgia just after Mr. Taft had left there during his recent southern tour and of having visited a house where Mr. Taft had been entertained. The proprietor of the house said, according to Dr. Washington, that after the president elect had left he went to the kitchen and asked the cook, an old negro "auntie," if she knew who had been entertained.

"Deed, boss, I ain't never heard of him before," said the old negress.

"The master of the house was surprised," said Dr. Washington. "He told her what a great man Mr. Taft was, how he had been chosen to head the nation.

"No, boss, I ain't never heard tell of him," said the auntie again. The master of the house started to walk away.

"But wait a minute, boss," exclaimed the negress. "He sholy do look like he's been regular at his meals."

Mr. Taft joined in the laugh that followed this joke at his expense.

WHAT IS EXPECTED OF TAFT?

The President's Greatest Tasks Defined in a National Symposium.

What is the most important task before the new administration under President Taft? What one great thing should be achieved by the incoming Taft administration?

The Christian Herald of New York sent out a letter of inquiry containing these questions to a large number of prominent men and women, all of them representative Americans, and many leaders in their respective fields in the nation's work, including United States senators, congressmen, government officials, governors of states, jurists, mayors, bishops, presidents of universities, authors, artists, admirals, generals and capitalists.

Two hundred replies were received. In these replies no less than forty different legislative and administrative tasks were mentioned as being of first importance in dealing with government and social reform, educational progress, scientific development, purification of politics, bettering the condition of labor and advancing the welfare of all the people, and nearly every correspondent voted more than one subject. Tabulated, the result of the appeal to the public opinion as to the most important task before the new administration stands as follows:

Reduce the tariff.....	105
Conserve natural resources.....	98

BALLOON RACE IN JUNE.

First Grand Prize National Contest Will Be Held in Indianapolis.

America's first grand prize national balloon race will be held in Indianapolis June 5, official announcement of which was made a few days ago by Cortlandt F. Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America. The winner of the race will be regarded as national balloon champion of the United States, the prize being a gold cup valued at $1,000. The race will be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America and in accordance with the governing rules of the International Aeronautic federation.

Aeronauts from any aero club affiliated with the Aero Club of America may participate in the contest, provided they have received licenses as pilots from the parent organization. There are now but eighteen licensed pilots in the United States, but as several aero clubs have organized recently, with new balloons all the time being built, it is thought that several additional aeronauts will qualify as pilots before the date of the race. The balloons will be sent up from the grounds of the Indianapolis motor parkway.

It was originally intended to hold this race in September or October, but as another balloon contest of national importance is to take place in St. Louis the week of Oct. 5 it was decided to hold the grand prize race earlier in the season. The St. Louis race will be held during the celebration of the city's one hundredth anniversary of its incorporation.

WORLD'S BIGGEST MAP.

It Will Be 3,724 Feet Long and Outline Long Island.

The biggest map in the world will be constructed on the south side of the Queensboro bridge, at New York, by the celebration committee. It will be 3,724 feet long and extend from the Manhattan shore to the Long Island City shore. This map will be sixty-nine feet in height. The map will be outlined by electric incandescent lamps and will outline Long Island in red, and the location of the principal towns and cities will be by green lamps.

This gigantic map will not be noticeable by day at a distance, but for one week during the celebration of the opening of the Queensboro bridge it can be seen from almost any point on the East river water frontage.

Backache, Kidney Pain

Pain in the small of the back. There's no mistaking this sign of kidney trouble.

Other indications are frequent urination, pain or smarting when passing water, deposits in the urine, headache and loss of flesh.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills overcome kidney derangements more promptly and thoroughly than any treatment you can obtain because of their combined and direct action on liver and kidney.

This letter to prove our claim.

Mrs. B. F. Tazco, Folk, Pa., writes: "During eight years of suffering from kidney disease six doctors treated me with little benefit. On the third day after beginning the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills I noticed an improvement and after using three boxes had gained 35 pounds and felt better than I had for nine years. I have told many about my wonderful cure."

One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
